ing of the State Committee—The Alliance Action.

Americus, Ga., August 11.—(Special.)—Due of the most impressive demonstrations ever accorded a public man in Georgia was given Judge Crisp today upon his arrival at his home in Americus, returning in the special car in which a party of his friends, 100 huntred strong, had gone to Atlanta Tuesday to meet him. He was met by about two thousand enthusiastic friends and neighbors and amid the clowing of all the factory whistles in the city he was escented to a carriage drawn by four spiraldhories. Standing in this, just at the scation, he delivered the following speach in response to an address of welcome made by Colonel William A. Dobson in behalf of the citizens of Americus and all this district:

my own people, but by the people of the whole state.

It has been many months since I have had the pleasure of being with you. Sent by you to represent you in congress, I have been, through the partiality of democratic representatives there, chosen to preside over the deliberations of the house. The exactions and the duties of that great office are such as to leave its facumbent no opportunity, unless in the case of dire necessity, to abandon his position and to come and meet and mingle with his people. Having been so attuated, and discharging to the best of my ability the onerous duties of the office, I have been my want, and as it is always my desire.

No man realizes more sincerely than I do the truth—the absolute truth—of the suggestion that "there is no place like home." Not matter what honors may be heaped upon you so matter what honors may be heaped upon you so matter what honors may be heaped upon you so matter what honors may be heaped upon you so matter how you may stand in the eyes of the world, in the heart of a man there is a osging and a desire to stand well in the affections of his immediate neighbors and of those with whom he comes in contact. The cost of that knowledge would not be compensated for the world in the comes in contact. The cost of the truth—of the normal I have need to be any carefult honor, and I have need to be any carefult honor, and I have need to be any carefult honor, and I have need to be any carefult honor, and I have need to be compensated for the truth—of the nearest the normal in the with on his laurels for a time.

Balley, of Texas, has branched out as a parliamentarian. He has made himself rather conspicuous and has been accused of demagoguery, but he is a bright and able young man. Whenever he talks he has the attention of the house. He is a natural orator and always makes a clean cut argument. Johnstone, of South Carolina, is a third new man who has taken an active part in the business of the house. Johnstone is a good orator, possesses a splendid voice and makes a telling speech when he addresses the house. He is also a good parliamentarian and presiding officer. On several occasions he was called to the chair, where he proved himself to be one of the few men in the house capable of conducting its business from the chair.

These three young men, should they remain in congress, are destined some day to become leaders.

BANKS AND PUBLIC MONEY.

Secretary Nettleton Tells How Deposits

Washington, August 11.—Acting Secretary Nettdeton has witten a letter to ex-kepresentative H. C. Brogden, of Goldsbro, N. C., in response to certain inquiries in regard to the coadnet of public affairs under the last and present administration.

To the question, "Did Cleveland or his secretary of the treasury let the banks have the use of deposits of public money belonging to the government without interest?" Mr. Nettleton says that the treasury department has no authority to loan public moneys with or without interest, and that as a matter of fact no interest has been received for deposits made with banks, but that during the last atministration public deposits with national bank depositaries were increased from sarphus revenues from about twenty millions of dollars to about twenty-two millions, which deposits bore no interest and were fully secured by United States bonds. The deposits however, have since been withdrawn from time to time until at present the entire amount on deposit with national bank depositaries is only about sixteen millions of dollars, including nearly four millions to the credit of United States dishursing officers.

The question as to whether Cleveland ever borrowed gold in England to pay interest to foreign bondholders is answered in the negative. Mr. Nettleton adds that interest on the public debt is payable in this country and the government of the United States has not for many years found it necessary to borrow money cither at home or abroad to pay interest on its individences.

A Peculiar Fight Over a Negro

Boy-Other News Notes.

Savannah, Ga., August 11.-(Special.)-The famous Millen land case has developed a surprisingly amount of ill-feeling among the lawyers representing the con-flicting interests, and today things began to assume a squally appearance, when Mr. Preston, of Macon, one of the counsel for the plaintiffs, created a sudden and surprising stir by stating that there had been an inuendo made upon his clients by a statement of Mr. Gazan. In the course of his argument, Mr. Preston came very much excited, stating that he had been a state senator, and had held numerous offices of trust, and that he did not wish his character assailed. He proceeded to denounce the attack, and sed language that was very strong.

Mr. Meldrim replied in very eloquent of Mr. Preston had not been necessary. Mr. Meldrim went on to say that, while Mr. Gazan needed no defense in the court or in the city year. the court or in the city, yet he would vouch for him even to his life. Mr. Preston here hastily interjected, "Personally?"

Mr. Meldrim very coolly, quietly and firmly replied, "Yes, sir, personally or otherwise, as you wish. The discussion was again reopened by Mr. Preston and he became so harsh and bitter in his language that the court had to order him to take his seat. The evidence afterwards tended to show that the clerk had told Mr. Gazan that Mr. Preston had taken all the important papers connected with the case. The clerk went on to state what he meant by his statement to of state what he meant by his statement to Mr. Gazan. This explanation, however, had not been made to Mr. Gazan until after Mr. Gazan had made the statement objected to by Mr. Preston.

The state democratic accounts committee met here today and he rules adopted by the last convention for party discipline which many now asimt proved hurtful and lost the party many totes in the recent election, were modified by the adoption of the following resolution;

Be it resolved, That all persons who are in accord with the principles of the democratic party, and who propose to act he harmony with it and support the nominates in the approaching presidential and congressional election, are entitled to participate and vote in all primaries and conventions of the party, and the party and the members all seemed to realize that there will be a warm fight in November, but have reason to be lieve that the state will be safe for Mr. Cleveland. The party will organize at once for the campalgn.

Birmingham, Ala., August 11.—(Special.) The state alliance at Culman adjourned today. They passed resolutions in secret session denouncing what they called the frauds in the recent election and declared their independence of the organized democracy. Then they adjourned, held a mass meeting, heard General Field speak and adopted similar resolutions with the addenda that it was their duty and purpose to defeat the regular Cleveland ticket in this state.

Joe Chamberlain's Speech.

Debate on the address in reply to th queen's speech was resumed, Joseph Chamberlain, leader of the liberal unionists, taking the floor. Mr. Chamberlain not measured by their numbers. In parliament they remained an undoubted poli-tical force, not less ended by their opponents calling them political apostates or an ill-starred abortion. He agreed that the issue between the unionists and home rulers had been decided, for a time, by the country, but, when Gladstone went on to say that it was irrelevant to do anything more than expel the government, without asking what would follow, he must pro-test. The coming government had been rightly described as a nebular hypothesis. It was so of the unionists. Mr. Gladstone was not consistent, for, while refusing to explain his policy, he gave answers in writing to Justin McCarthy's questions. Was it not hard measures when 315 unionists must not ask a single question, and the nationalists could ask five and get civil answers to them? Nowadays powerful telescopes forced nebular bodies to disclose their secrets, and resolved them into component atoms. McCarthy must have the most powerful of these instru-(Laughter.) Did a vote of a want of con-

(Laughter.) Did a vote of a want or confidence in the government imply confidence in the party replacing them? The present opposition intact could put the government in a minority of forty; but the new government might find itself in a minority of 100 at almost the breath of its existence. It was a strange position, so the opposition strove to stifle debate. What was the foreign policy of the incoming government? Parliament heard nothing on that subject. The speeches of Gladstone and Morley, sometime ago, had led many at home and abroad to believe nothing on that subject. The speeches of Gladstone and Morley, sometime ago, had led many at home and abroad to believe that they designed an early evacuation of Egypt, while they disapproved the policy of the triple alliance.

Mr. Morley, interrupting—I never touched the question of the triple alliance.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the position of Italy towards the allies had formed an important part of the speech of Mr. Morley. Continuing, he said he hoped that Lord Rosebery would be the new foreign minister. People had confidence in his policy because it was opposed to that of Gladstone and Morley. (Cheers). If Lord Rosebery should not be the new foreign minister, some morning they would awake to find preparations being made to evacuate Egypt, on which subject the opinion of the house had never been taken.

The task that the opposition had undertaken was of herculean proportions. They were going to try to pull the union to pieces to construct a constitution. There were two conditions absolutely essential. First, they must agree among themselves; next, they must agree among themselves; next, they must rely upon the moderation of their Irish allies. They could, however, neither effect an agreement among their own party nor place reliance on the Irish members. (Conservative cheers.) Divided among themselves, those they sought to benefit began by dictating to them. (Cheers.) He asked the wisest among the opposition to give the matter serious reconsideration; ("Oh. Oh,") to others he did not speak. He asked them fo consider that what at all times had been a difficult question—the supremacy of the imperial parliament—had now becomes impossible. ("Hear! hear!") They could not conceal from themselves the fact that they would be unable to fulfill the expectations which they had excited that their efforts were doomed beforehand to inevitable failure. (Prolonged cheering.).

Sir Henry James—liberal unionist—said that in common fairness to their constituents, they ought to know the provisions of the home rule bill. Mr. Gl tion had never before been accorded a responsible minister.

The speaker rose to put the question on Mr. Asquith's motion and was answered with a thunderous volume of ayes and nays from respective sides of the house. Strangers having withdrawn from the precincts of the chamber, the speaker repented the unal formula of putting the question, and was again greeted with sustained and vehement replies.

again greeted with sustained and vehement replies.

The Motion Carried.

The house divided at midnight. When Gladstone returned from the jobby the whole iberal party rose and cheered him. The tellers appeared at 12:25 o'clock a. m., with a paper containing numbers showing the result of the division and handed the paper to Arnold Modley, liberal whip. This was the signal for a volley of liberal cheers and Irish shouts of "Mitcheltown!" "Down with Balfourism!" etc., and it was some time before Mr. Morley was able to autonuce the figures. The result announced was: For the motion, 350; against the motion, 310.

Then there was a fresh display of enthusiasm.

The noise having subsided, Balfour and the whole body of conservatives rose and amid prolonged acclaims Balfour moved that the house adjourn until Thursday next. The motion was agreed to.

The casimet has been summoned to meet at noon tomorrow (Friday), and Lord Salisbury will leave at 1 o'clock p. m. for Osborne house. After formal resignation Lord Salisbury will remain at Osborne house for the night. Gladstone will see the queen Saturday. A representative of the Associated Press learns definitely that Sir William Vernon Harcourt has accepted the pest of chancellar of the exchequer in the new ministry. Gladstone has cooled toward his former favorite, Fowler, owing to the latter's want of energy during the electoral period.

Remarkable Rainfall in the Cotton Sections and the Result.

The Nazas river, which flows through the celebrated Laguna cotson country, is out of its banks for the first time in many years and has flooded thousands of acres of land. No less than ten small villages are inundated and the rise of the stream was so sudden that many deaths from drowning have resulted.

The town of Loma, thirty miles south of here, is completely under water and a large here, is completely under water and a large portion of it has been washed away by the raging Nazas river. ANOTHER PLOT TO KILL FRICK Said to Have Been Discovered-Warning

Letters Received.

Pittsburg, August 11.—The Post publishes a story to the effect that another anarchist plot to kill H. C. Frick, president of the Carnegie Steel Company, has been discovered. The man who was to carry it into effect is namer Aronstamm, an associate of Bergman. As a result of the discovery additional guards have been placed about the Carnegie buildings and Frick's residence, and detectives accompany him wherever he goes. Mr. Frick regards these precautions as unnecessary, but his friends insist upon this precaution. In this connection it can be said that decreased Lovejoy has been warned that he has only until the 15th instant to live. Other officials of the Carnegie company have also received threatening letters.

Hugh U'Donnel Returns.

Homestead, August 11.—High O'Donnell, chairman of the advisory committee, ryturned today from his trip through Canada and the northern sintes. He was greeted with some cordiality by the locked out men, but his arrival did not create a farore. About twenty men entered the mill this evening. They were skilled workmen and came from the eastern part of the state. Jack Clifford, another Homestead man, was arrested this evening on the charges of murder and aggravated riot.

"Professor," asked Mr. Burrow, of Spalding, "don't you think if the agricultural college was established on the experimental farm, those empty rooms to which your refer would soon be filled?"

Mr. Hunnicult replied he was unable to answer the question, that the subject was a grave one and had been considered by wriser heads than possibly either of theirs, and was still being considered without definite decision.

Golonel Hamilton Yancey, of Rome, desviser heads than possibly either of theirs, and was still being considered without definite decision.

Colonel Hamilton Yancey, of Rome, delivered an address on "The Work and Workings of the State Convention." He took up the work from its original organization and showed up the results to the present time, paying high tribute to the officers of the past, and their efforts to raise the farmer to a higher plane. Colonel Yancey's address was replete with good sound advice for those of the present time, as well as eulogising those of the past. The afternoon session found but few members in their scats when President Waddell wrapped for order, at 2:15 o'clock, but the hall was soon filled, as the closing business was to be full of interest.

After calling the meeting to order Colonel Fannin, of Troup, was put in the chair temporarily, while Colonel Waddell went with the executive committee to elect a treasurer in the place of Captain R. J. Powell, deceased.

During their absence Hon. J. B. Gorman read an interesting paper on "Rice Culture in Middle Georgia, or Upland Rice Culture." Mr. Gorman held that rice could be profitably raised in this country, and on lands, too, that were not of service for anything else. Colonel J. H. Fleming, of Liberty county, endrsed Mr. Gorman, and cited an instance of his own knowledge where had been raised away from tide water, and made profitable.

The last address was by Colonel Grigshy E. Thomas, of Muscogee county, on "The Relations of Civil Law to Agriculture." His way perhaps the most striking address that has yet been delivered. At the conclusion, Colonel J. J. Mobley, of Harris county, in a few well chosen words,

The New Treasurer.

The executive committee then announced that their choice of a successor of Captain R. J. Powell for treasurer had resulted in the selection of Mr. George Adams, of Monroe county. Mr. Adams was for a long while president of the old Macon and Western railroad, and was agent of the Central at Forsyth up to a short time ago. He is a man widely known in Georgia and highly esteemed by his friends and neigobors at home. The universal verdict of the convention is that the committee acted wisely in its selection to the lamented dead treasurer.

At the request of the president, Dr. H. H. Cary then read a touching memorial resolution of regret on the death of Captain Powell. The resolution was as follows:

Resolved, That a blank page of our minutes be appropriated, on which shall be inscribed the name of Robert J. Powell, with the date of his birth and death.

2. That the secretary be and is hereby instructed to forward to the family of the deceased a copy of the memorial and appended resolutions and the condolence of this society. Kespectfully submitted, H. H. CARY, Chairman.

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

The Next Convention.

The next business before the convention was the selection of a place of meeting in February in 1893. Silence reigned for some time, no one seemed to be going to give the invitation, when one of the members suggested that they were not beggars, they paid their own way, hence had a right to go where it suited them, and suggested Brunswick. This aroused them. It was what the members were waiting for. Each wanted to give in the last bid to make it a little stronger than the last man, so when Brunswick was nominated some one named Columbus and promised free entertainment; then Macon and Cuthbert were brought forward. Columbus got the largest vote and will have the honor of entertaining the delegates in February, 1893. There was only one vote taken and when it was seen Columbus had a majority the vote was made unanimous.

A good deal of work has been done, and good work, too—work that will show itself in the crops of next year; and the remarkable part of it is it has all been done harmoniously. No one save one defeated vice president could possibly take exception at anything the convention has done.

Colonel L. F. Livingston arrived this morning and has been the center of admiring crowds all day. He said to The Constitution this evening that it was a significant fact that a third partyite from one of the congressional districts was an aspirant for vice president, and was defeated by his own brother-in-law, who was a democrat. This, he thinks, represents the standing of the farmers on the question. Colonel Livingston will reply to Watson's Thomson speech at Jonesboro tomorrow. He characterizes Mr. Watson's speech as misleading, and says while he has not had time to go fully into it, his story of congress appropriating a large sum to the Grand Army of the Republic is utterly false. The city of Washington is governed by congress, just as Atlanta is governed by her mayor and board of aldermen, and in this capacity congress granted the city of Washington the power to donate a sum of money to the Grand Army of the Republic. Yet Mr. Watson seeks to leave the impression that the money was from the United States treasury. Wednesday night, when her father came home, she told him that she had been outraged. The boys were arrested today, and in the trial set up a defense of the previous bad character of the girl. The matter has been strangely kept so quiet that it has caused little excitement at the commitment trial before 'Squire Longiy. Pearson and Arwood were put in jail to await trial tomorrow. The girl was working at the canning factory after night, and these boys called to see her home, and while passing a pine thicket on their way, she sars, they forced her at the muzzle of a pistol to go with them, where they kept her all night. She is confined to her bed unable to attend the trial, and the attending physician gives strong evidence against her assailants. She is badly mutilated.

A Forlorn Hope.

A Forlorn Hope.

Forsyth, Ga., August 11.—(Special.)—Mr.

W. A. Poe, of Bibb county, is the nominee of the people's party for state senator from this, the twenty-second district. The convention met here today and unanimously nominated him. Under the democratic rotation system, Pike county will furnish the senator this time and has nominated Hon. J. S. Polk, of Zebulou, who will of course be elected, as this district is democratic by a big majority.

Nominations to Congress.

Jackson, Misa., August 11.—(Special.)—Allen Catchings and Kyle have been renominated for congress and incomplete returns from yesterday's primaries seem to make certain Stockdale's return. Primaries were held in Beeman's district yesterday, most of the counties are in the interior, but he is evidently defeated. Lewis will not be renominated. Hooker has opposition but his nomination seems a certainty. The people's party will put up candidates in all the districts except against Catchings, but will stand a chance of carrying no district except possibly the fourth, now represented by Lewis.

There Was No Meeting.

Notwithstanding the statement to the contrary, the Vineville meeting did not materialize, last evening. Promptly at the advertised hour, Silo o'clock, Judge Speer, Judge Gustin, Messrs. B. J. Holt and William McKay gathered at the front steps of the Vineville schoolhouse and waited until 9 o'clock, but no one else came.

Judge Speer made no report and it is not probable that another meeting will be called before October.

It is learned from outsiders that the committee appointed on sewers, of which Colonel Isaac Hardeman is chairman, has closed a contract with Engineer Hendricks to make the preliminary survey in order to designate the line of the proposed sewers and to estimate the cost of the same. It is said that his services will cost $150. The amount will be paid by citizens of the village. Instead of applying to the superior court for a charter to incorporate their "law and order society," it is thought best to frame a bilt to the legislature covering all the points anticipated by the citizens, viz.: Sewers, police protection and a paid or volunteer fire department.

A Collector Disappears.

Mr. W. J. Haire has disappeared. For the last year he has been the collector in Augusta for the N. D. McDonald Publishing Company, of Atlanta.

Mr. Haire's returns to his house had not been satisfactory and he was notified that a new collector would be sent here to take his place and that his services would no longer be needed by the company. Mr. C. M. Compton, Haire's successor, arrived a few days ago and since his coming this sensation has dereloped. Mr. Compton found that Haire's receipt book did not tally at all with remittances to headquarters. Mr. Haire's shortage, it is claimed, will amount to between seven and eight hundred dollars. Haire left the city the day Compton arrived here and his whereabouts are unknown. He jumped his hotel bill and left a number of other outstanding bills unpaid. Killed with a Brickbat.

Harper, of the Americus public schools, who discourses charmingly on "English Grammar." In addition to these, Rev. Robert Adams, pastor of the Presbyterian church, delivers beautiful lectures on "Elocution and several others talk entertainingly on other subjects.

State School Commissioner S. D. Bradwell fins visited the institute twice, and each time has delighted everybody with his practical, sympathetic talks. He is going to spend three days here next week, and both instructors and leachers (pipils) are anticipating his visit with pleasure.

More than two hundred teachers have been in Americus during the past week. Of this number about one hundred and twenty-five have been white, and ninety-five colored. They have come from all parts of Georgia south of Atlanta; that is, they have come from as far north as Macon, as far east as Hawkinsville and Brunswick.

They have all had a good time and they have received.

The holding back of the money on the Macon and Northern railroad is putting its employes to great inconvenience and hurting Athens' trade. Saturday an officer from Judge Speer's court issued restraining orders on all the employes of the Macon and Northern poad receiving or handling money for the company prohibiting them from paying any money to Mr. J. H. Rucker, Judge Newman's recently appointed receiver. Pay day has come and passed, but as a result of Judge Speer's action the employes of the road cannot be paid off. Many of them owe their monthly bills, which they cannot now pay, causing both themselves and the merchants much inconvenience.

A Peculiar Marriage and Its Results—The Career in Bairstridge of a Very Peculiar Couple.

Bainbridge, Ga., August 11.—(Special.)—On the 21st day of last April a man of apparently fifty odd years of age, with both a foreign name and accent, travel-worn and seedy, entered the ordinary's office here and asked for a marriage license. He gave his name as Dr. Julius Rembert Von Polnitz and that of the ledw as Miss Alice Pullen and that of the lady as Miss Alice Pullen questions propounded him by the ordinary stating further that he was from Florid and Miss Pullen from Alabama After procuring the license he at once sought a magistrate to perform the ceremony, and, accompanied by that official, mony, and, accompanied by that official, proceeded to a respectable boarding house, where the magistrate was not agreeably surprised to find an intelligent and refined lady considerably on the shady side of twenty, in waiting to be united for weal or woe to the seedy and unprepossessing Julius Rembert Von Polnitz. After their mar riage they remained for some weeks at the riage they remains ame boarding house.

It was not long, however, before improvement was noticed in purchased, It was not long, however, before a marked improvement was noticed in the apparel of the seedy groom, purchased, no doubt, by the bride's money. His grizzly hair and beard also changed to a raven black. But, unfortunately for the confiding bride, the moral conduct of the groom did not keep pace with the improvement of his dress, and her refined sensibilities were doomed to be shocked by a bruish and drunken wretch.

It was not long before the poor woman found she had not only married a penulless tramp, but a drunkard and a villian. Finding that their board bill must be paid, and having already expended what money she had to buy clothes for his adornment, she offered to pawn her jewelry, which the sympathizing proprietor refused to take from her.

aympathizing proprietor refused to take from her.

They then moved their lodgings to a less pretentious holstery, where, with woman's confidence and fealty, she still clung to the hope of reforming a brute. But his conduct went on from bad to worse, until one day last month the other inmates of the house were alarmed by the sound of blows and the screams and groups of Mrs. Pol-duct went on from bad to worse, until one day last month the other inmates of the house were alarmed by the sound of blows and the screams and groans of Mrs. Polnitz in her room. Just as they were about to rush to her assistance, she forced open the door and sprang out exclaiming:

"Oh, my side! Oh, my side!"

Even then, realizing that the first impulse of those present would be to mete out summary punishment to Polnitz, she implored them not to do him any harm, and through her entrenties they desisted.

Polnitz staggered out of the house in his usual besotted condition and has not been seen here since. Mrs. Polnitz, by pawning her effects, procured enough money that afternoon to take the train, more dead than alive, to Cave Springs, Ga., where, she said, her father lived. A few days after the woman who kept the boarding house received a letter from Rev. J. W. Pullen, a Baptist minister at Cave Springs, informing her that his daughter Alice had reached home and died within a few hours, apparently from serious injuries somehow received, and asked for information concerning the man she had married. This letter fell into the hands of Sheriff Patterson, who immediately went to work to locate Polnitz. A few days ago the keeper of the boarding house also received another letter, written from Leon county, Florida, purporting to be from Polnitz's sister, asking for information concerning Mrs. Polnitz. Upon comparing this letter with the handwriting of Polnitz it was plain that no other than his own hand wrote it. Sheriff Patterson at once dispatched to the sheriff at Tallahassee, who succeeded in arresting and lodging shm safely in jail. He will be brought back here tomorrow to answer to a warrant for the murder of his wife.

THE REPUBLICANS

Refuse to Put Out a State Ticket This

THE WORK OF YESTERDAY'S CONVENTION

Colonel Buck Holds the Key to the Combiion and Keeps It Securely in His Pocket-Electors Appointed.

The republican convention has met and

Though outwardly avowing their hatred of the party, so closely allied in sympathy and kinship with their old enemy, they secretly intend to cast their ballots in favor of Colonel Peek, in order to defeat the candidate of the ca lidates of the organized democracy.

A significant fact in connection with the proceedings and one that taken in connection with the secret section of the executive committee last Wednesday makes out the case, was the unanimity of the convention in declining to put out a state ticket. The ostensible reason for its action was the folly of sacrificing their candidates by putting them out as nominees for positions that were hopelessly democratic. The true reason, however, as many suppose, for not put-ting out a state ticket, was their intention coalesce with the people's party.

Pledger Snowed Under. Pledger was the only man in the conven-tion who had advocated the nomination of a state ticket, but in spite of the speech, with which he endeavored to convince the delegates, he was "snowed under" by an overwhelming vote, and nothing but his own negative prevented the action of the the ticket.

Pledger's speech was a good one, hower, but the delegates shook their heads disapproval of his views and allowed

There is certainly a grave reason for not putting out a state ticket, and if they do not coalesce with the people's party they are up to something. The evidence of a coalition, though purely circumstantial, is strengly supported by appearances. It is certain that the executive committee held a long and protracted meeting last Wednesday afternoon. The doors were closed and no one was allowed to enter the meeting. If there has been no agreement by which the republicans ary to espouse the people's party it is certain that many of them will cast their votes in favor of the new candidates simply to defeat the democratic ticket.

But Georgia's democracy is in no danger, and no conspiracy into which the republicans may enter can injure the prospects of an overwhelming majority. From the coal mines of Dade to the water coast of Glynn the tidal wave of democracy will sweep over the state and cerry everything in its path. The honest farmers of every district will rally to the support of the old banner and republicanism and third partyism will meet with such a scathing rebuke that they will never forget the campaign of 1892.

Yesterday's Convention.

Yesterday's Convention.

The convention was called to order a few minutes after 12 o'clock by Colonel R. D. Locke, of Macon, Ga. Mr. S. W. Easley acted as secretary.

The appearance of the hall when the chairman rapped it to order was suggestive of a very heavy crop of blackberries. The colored delegates outnumbered the white delegates in the ratio of eight to one and the mock dignity with which they posed in the state capitol was delightfully refreshing. Many of the delegates were prim and fixed up for the occasion—wearing their Sunday clothes and toothpick shoes—but several were fresh from the cornfields and looked as if they had just stepped out from between the rows. It was an orderly and well-behaved convention, however, and no violence to the democratic sanctity of the hall was committed by their deliberation. violence to the democratic sanctity of the hall was committed by their deliberations.

"Let the convention come to order" were the first words that came from the presiding officer.

"Gentlemen of the convention," said the

the first words that came from the presiding officer.

"Gentlemen of the convention," said the chairman, "this is a grand opportunity for your presiding officer to make a speech, but he will not embarrass your proceedings with any lengthy remarks. My heart and mind, however, are full of republicanism, and I could speak for hours if the circumstances did not interfere. It is proper for me to state that our delegates to the national convention discharged their duties faithfully, both to their party and their country in nominating that great statesman, Benjamin Harrison. (Great applause and cries of "dat's right.") He will be triumphantly elected,—(renewed cheers)—and the country will be safe for four more years. (Continued applause with an "amen" from a colored brother over in the corner.) Every citizen who loves liberty should vote for Benjamin —," but the last word was lost in the tumult that followed the name of the big republican.

The McKinley Bill.

The McKinley Bill.

"The principal issue of the campaign will be that glorious McKinley bill. (Great applause.) Democratic newspapers and democratic orators have denounced it, but I will give $25 to the man who will show that it injures the consumer. (Itenewed applause.) Let them write 10 Mr. Mills or to Grover Cleveland, the great adv. cates of free trade, and they will not be able to prove their assertions even by their testimony. (Cheering and cries of "Good.") But I have said epough. ("Go ahead," yelled out a dozen or more colored delegates.) No I have said enough. The first lusiness before the convention is the nomination of presidential electors."

Electors Nominated.

Colonel L. M. Pleasant, of Savannah, obtained the floor. "I nominate," said he, two well-known gentlemen—one a colored delegate and the other a white delegate—Colonel C. W. Arnold, of Dougherty, and Captain J. W. Lyons, of Richmond."

No opposition being offered, the candidates were elected by acclamation.

For alternate delegates, Messrs. H. L. Johnson, of Butts, and J. C. Brittain, of Lumpkin, received the nomination.

The chairman then announced that the next business before the convention was the discussion of a state ticket.

"Mr. Chairman, Mr. Chairman," came from a score of throats as the delegates scrambled for recognition. The chair recognized Mr. J. W. Smith, of Cobb.

His First Convention.

"I arise," said he, "for the first time in my life in a republican convention—everybody thought he was a new convert—but I have lived in Georgia for twenty-three years and have stubbornly fought the democratic party. I was also a union soldier and fought under the flag of my country. (Applause.) I am opposed to putting out a state ticket."

I yesterday opposed the policy of inactivity and it is proper here to succinctly state that the "Pabian policy" is a poor one, whether applied to war or politics. The "masterly retreat" or "masterly inactivity" is exploded and discarded as rubblah of the past. "Forward march" and "Keep up with the procession" are the watchwords of the nine-teenth century. "Stand still," "fall back," "retreat," "do nothing" are doleful voices from the tomb. (Applause.)

In 1804 General Joseph Johnston took command of as fine an army as was ever admoralization set in and demeral an Johnston soon as a stand to the state of the faces of the state of the faces of the state of the state of the faces of the state of the faces of the state of the s there the tally sheets will tell the honest tale of his standing in the community where he is best known.

These are the men the president wants, and these are the men who make a "party"—a real "party"—great, strong and useful; and these grand results can never be attained while locally we remain in a state of "innocuous desectude."

You say we can't get candidates. What is the matter with Colonel Jesse A. Glenn, of Dalton, for governor? He is an ex-confederate soldier and a Georgian by birth, and it is said he will accept the nomination. What is the matter with "Uncle Billy" Bowers for secretary of state? What is the matter with Colonel Bete Lawshe for comptroller general, E. S. Richardson for commissioner of agriculture and Mr. Stallings for treasurer of the state? Colonel Locke has often said he had a man in Macon who would accept the nomination for attorney general. Bring him out. If we can't get candidates for all the ticket, then put out candidates for all the ticket, then put out candidates for lather the persistent courage and perseverance of the statehouse offices. (He then spoke of the Jowa democrata, who had succeeded in wiping out a republican majority in Jowa of $0,000 and converting it into a democratic majority by the two elections of Boies. He alson cited the Vermont democrats, who year after year put up a state ticket anyhow.)

There is only one thing about the democrats I admire, and that is their constancy and persistence. Defeats do not discourage them, but with a courage and an undaunted faith worthy a better cause they come up smilling and serene at every election.

faith worthy a better cause they come up smilling and serene at every election.

The prisoner in the castle at Chantilly watched the industrious spider as he would mend and weave his web whenever broken, no matter how often, and, rebuked by such energy, he rose from his sloth, shook off his despair, broke his chains and was once more free. So I would say to the republican party, shake off your indolence and remove the accumulated dust of twenty years' inactivity and boldly enter the arena and contend for the prize, like the Roman gladiators of old. "God helps those who help themselves," and if we wait on the river bank for Jordan to run dry and somebody to ferry ug over, we will never reach the political "land of promise" nor climb Pisgah's heights, but will miscrably and deservedly perish in the wilderness. (Applause.)

McHenry Gets the Floor.

After Bill Pledger resumed his seat, the only original Jackson McHenry was recognized by the chair.

"Mr. Chairm'n and gemmen," said McHenry, "I ain't gwine to 'tain yer mor'n five minits. Here's what I want ter say. Jist listen: I'd ruther see a 'publican gov'ner in Georgie an' uther big 'publican officers in de state den to see Mr. Harrison sot in de big presidential cheer. I want dese bailiffs what arrest niggers—I want dem to be 'publicans. (Laughter and applause.) I want 'publican judges and 'publicans everywhere. My brethren," said he, bouncing over to another subject, "why don't you pay yer taxes. You's a power in de land, and if you'd jest pay up you'd have things your own way. (Great cheering.) I want to see a 'publican legislature here before many days, and it's coming, mark what I tell you. The white folks have got a soldiers' home, but whar's yer home for de niggers? (Applause and "good, McHenry.") Whar's yer home for de colored folks? (Renewed applause.) I want de law changed, so dat de nigger can vote widout paying his taxes, and it's going to be when we get de legislature."

"May I interrupt the gentleman," asked one of the delegates.

"No, yer can't stop a nigger when he's got de floor," and with that he proceeded. After speaking for two or three minutes, he resumed his seat, announcing before he sat down that he was opposed putting out a state ticket, because it couldn't be elected.

Resolutions of Sympashy.

The following resolutions were then offered by S. W. Easley:

Resolved, That the republicans of Georgia in convention this day assembled extend to his excellency, the Hon. Benjamin Harrison, president of the United States, their sympathy in the serious illness of his wife, the first lady of the nation.

Resolved, That this convention congratulate the delegates to the late Minneapolis convention for their patriotism, fidelity and loyalty to President Harrison, and that the momination of Harrison and Reid for president and vice president of these United States meets with our hearty endorsement.

Resolved, That the president of this convention appoint a committee of one from each congressional district and two from the state at large to prepare an address to the republican voters of this state, and that the chairman of the state executive compittee and president of this convention are hereby appointed members thereof.

The finsh of an exciting campaign in Georgia is on.

And long before the democrats, republicans and third partyites draw up their lines in November for the great lattle of the ballots, every promise is given that some lively skirmishing will be indulged in.

The three parties have already met in convention, chosen their leaders and thrown have its organization in its executive or state central committee. Brief interviews with the chairmen of these varied committees just at this time make good reading.

A Democratic Point of View.

Chairman Atkinson, of the state democratic executive committee, when seen by The Constitution and asked for an estimate of the democratic strength in Georgia and for an expression of opinion as to the outlook, said:

"I deem it unnecessary for me to say a word. The last few days of demonstration in Atlanta and the results that evolved out of the first meeting of the new executive committee speak for themselvs and declare in no unmistakable way that Georgia democracy is wide awake, thoroughly aroused and will continue to organize until the entire state is practically crystallized for the principles of the party.

"We will not lose twenty counties at the hands of both parties. When the votes are counted, our state ticket will be overwhelmingly elected, and when the national election rolls by we will carry the state of Georgia by not less than 40,000.

"That is all I have to say."

From a Third Party View.

From a Third Party View.

Chairman Irwin, of the th'rd party executive committee, is sick at bis hone in Conyers and could not be interviewed by The Constitution, but Mr. A. G. Daniel, business manager for The Alliance Farmer, who is in a position to know what strength the people's party has developed, when seen had this to say:

"Well, to speak in general terms, I feel that I do not overleap the bounds of reasonable conjecture when I say we will sweep almost every county in the state.

"I really think there will be but few counties in Georgia that we will not get from the democrats.

"There is no doubt in the world about us having absolute and overwhelming control of the next legislature—none in the world, although you seem to be laughing at the estimate.

"But the best thing is to wait and see, and that's what we will all see," and Colonel Daniel really seemed to mean every word that and other means, as they have been heretofore.

"We ought to cast some 75,000 votes in the state, at least—and I hope we shall.

The outlook is encouraging for republicans and the more so because of the third party revolt, promising a division in the ranks of the old democracy."

Other leading republicans stated that the republican yote next November would be much larger than ever before.

Colonel Buck says it will be the policy of the party to put out candidates for congress in most all of the congressional districts, but to leave state elections severely alone.

A Railroad Man's Views.

The other side of the freight discrimi-tion question is briefly, but forcibly, ed in another column by "A Railad Man."

We have no disposition to deny the es made by our correspondent. In int of fact, The Constitution was the rst to call attention to this grievance of railroads, and we have good grounds believing that the evil is already doally corrected. The people of Atanta love justice and fair play, and the ajority of our lawyers are in accord with . When we exposed the methods re-rted to in the persecution of the railds, the bar and the people heartily ensed our view of the matter, and, from ant hour, the razor backs and their lliffs found their business blocked.

Atlanta has shown her determination to deal fairly with the railroads, and she must be met half way.

It is no overstatement of the case to my that there is not another city on the nent that sufferers from the outrage ns freight discrimination directed against ianta. This has been shown in colna of statistics, and it is needless to ret the details again.

This is bad policy on the part of the lroads. Atlanta's growth in the past uld be surpassed by her future growth er favorable conditions, and the insed traffic to and from this point ld greatly benefit the transportation es. It is a short-sighted policy that would hamper the progress of such a sity by unfair freight rates.

ut it is unnecessary to go over the old ar ground. Atlanta will give the roads fair play, and her business men not get together and see that there is e reciprocity in this thing. Railroads supposed to be highways of commerce, nd they will not be permitted to concert and combine together to injure a great cial center. No matter what it or what labor it involves, Atlanta es to get rid of this unfair distion, and have the shackles strickfrom her commerce. We have built the metropalis of the south—a city at pays one-seventh of the taxes of the a and we cantest afford to have our nde and industry sacrificed.

the democrats of the house elled to vote appropriations yield for in laws passed by

There it is in plain black and white The whole of it! The complete charge gainst the democratic party, which, so far as its logic is concerned, might have originated in Bedlam. The democratic party is to be arraigned for not accou shing what no party was ever expect ed to accomplish until it had secured control of the government in its legislative party has made pledges to the people, and has failed to redeem them." The evidently hope to convince ignorant votes that the democratic party has really been in a position to redeem its pledges. But where in Georgia is there a white voter so ignorant that he doesn't know better? If one can be found, he should be trotted out and placed on exhibition.

Not since 1861 has the democratic party had an opportunity to carry out its governmental policy. Not in thirty years has it had control of all branches of the government. It has elected a president, and it has elected, in several instances a democratic house, but it has never had control of the house, the senate and the dministration at one and the same time Therefore, it has never had an oppor tunity to show how far it would go carrying out its pledges.

We have seen what the charges of the anti-democrats are. We have seen how absurd they must appear to any sensible person. Nevertheless, it is upon these silly and groundless charges that the anti-democratic movement is based. The unjust iniquitous republican laws against which the people are protesting, and for the repeal of which they are constantly clamoring, are still on the statute books. How are the people to get relief? What is the remedy proposed by the anti-demo crats? "Elect me!" cries Colonel Peek; "Elect me!" yells Mr. Watson;" "Destroy the democratic party!" shout all the anti democrats, and the cry is echoed by Colonel Buck and the republicans. Truely, this remedy might have been invented in Bedlam. Will the farmers of Georgia get more money and find relief from unjust and burdensome republican legislation by electing Colonel Peek, or by electing Mr. Watson, or by destroying the democratic party, and placing Colone Buck and the republicans in power here! The voter who thinks so is afflicted with midsummer madness. The people themselves have committed their cause into the hands of the democratic party. It is an organization that has grown out of necessity, and every hope of safety, every suggestion of prudence, every impulse of patriotism, demands that it shall be strengthened and solidified to meet the onslaught which the money power, the monopolies and the trusts are preparing to make on the people through the repub lican party.

A Newspaper's Victims. The recent suicide of Judge Normile, it St. Louis, in a fit of depression caused by the strictures of The Post-Dispatch is the leading sensation of the day. It seems that the judge was abnormally sensitive. He was of humble origin, and was a self-made man. Any reference to his early poverty mortified him, and when his judicial conduct was censured or ridiculed, he felt that life was not worth living. About a year ago The Post-Dispatch took advantage of his statement on the bench that he did not know how to act in a certain matter, and ridiculed him unmercifully. Finding that he was sen sitive and easily annoyed, the newspaper kent up its attacks, and was sometim brutally offensive. Normile brought a ibel suit, but the war co rather than murder the editor, the judge took his own life. The unfortunate man's corpse was hardly cold before a Post-Dispatch reporter called at the house, and, naming the paper he represented, said: "I want to see the oody, please." It is unnecessary to say that the landlady shut the door in his face with a few vigorous remarks about the shameless impudence of his employers in sending him there after hounding Normile

It is hard to judge such cases. The newspaper criticisms that will not affect one man will drive another crazy. Some men are constitutionally so sensitive that when an attack is made upon them in print they see no way to meet it but to rush into the oblivion of death. It is useless to reason with such men-useles to tell them that they can make their stainless lives answer every unjust attack, and array the public on their side. When they feel the breath of censure they have received a mortal wound.

It is a bad thing to be too sensitive. A blind man, crippled for life, has a better chance to get along in the world than a super-sensitive man.

A Just Demand.

There seems to be a notion on the part of some would-be champions of the national banks that the democratic de-mand for the repeal of the 10 per cent prohibitory tax on the notes of state oanks, is in the nature of an attack on that system. And yet, nothing could be from the truth. The democratic demand is supported by a great many of the most intelligent bankers of the country, and by a large majority of conservative business men.

The repeal of the prohibitory tax will not uproot or destroy any system, but will merely change the law under which the system operates. National banks will become state banks if they desire to issue notes, otherwise they will become private banks, or will remain as they are. The repeal of the clause which imposes the prohibitory tax will not repeal the naional banking laws. This is a fact that ought to be uppermost in the minds of those who discuss the democratic plank, but it seems to be lost sight of altogether.

The democratic demand is based on the The democratic demand is based on the soundest of democratic principles. The tax deprives the people of a right which they surrendered in order to aid the government in time of war. The emergency has passed, and there is no longer any reason why the people shall be deprived of the right to issue their own currency in the shape of non-legal tender notes. These is no longer any reason why the people should be deprived of the right to do what the national bankers are largely falling to do. When the tax is repealed, the national banks can take out charters under state laws, or they can retain their sent charters and continue just as ey are. There will be no pressure ought to bear on them except such as may grow naturally out of the situation.

The tax which the democratic platform lemands shall be repealed is unequal and unjust. In the towns and cities, in the thickly settled parts of the country money s less needed. It is the boast of the banks and of financial writers that the volume of currency is large enough because they do not feel the pressure that the lack of it brings about. Business is mainly carried on by, and small debts are settled in, checks. These checks frequently pass through many hands and institute an untaxed circulation which is constantly increasing in volume. Meanwhile, under the present system, there is always a currency famine in the regions remote from the financial centers. This is where money is needed the most and where it is always scarce.

There is another thing for the financial experts to reflect over. The population in the regions where there is a continual money famine is much larger and more powerful politically than the population in the money centers. If its just demands go unheeded, all sorts of heresies will push themselves to the front, and the comfortable financiers will find themselves in trouble.

The Cities Are Interested.

Some of our esteemed contemporaries in discussing the subject of road improve ment, seem to be impressed with the idea that only the country people are to be benefited. This view is altogether too narrow. It might as well be said that only the cities are interested in railroad extension and improvement. The truth is the bonds between those who live in the cities and those who live in the country are so close and strong that their inter ests cannot be considered separately except in the petty details of police regulation and protection, which combine to make about all there is to municipal gov ernment. In all matters of public concern the interests of the people in the country are identical with those of the people in cities. Whatever benefits there may be in communal association may be enjoyed in some degree and at far less cost by those who live in the country. These benefits arise inevitably from improved roads, which bring neighbors closer together and quicken the social impulses that lie dormant in the country.

Yet every town and city, every organized community, is vitally interested in the condition of the roads of which it is the market center. The more important a city is—the more ambitious—the greater the necessities for good market roads. This is not a mere theory; it is a statement that demonstrates a fact. It is more important that 75,000 or a 100,000 people should reap the benefits of good market roads than that two or three hundred farmers should be able to trans port their produce more cheaply. Therefore, it should be borne in mind that cities and towns, with all their railroad facilities, have obligations in other directions which they cannot escape. The question of good roads is as much an urban as it is a rural problem. Every resident of an organized community is as much interested in its prompt and fortunate solution as the resident of a rural militia district.

It is a question that should be dis cussed on the very broadest grounds.

"Sentimental Reasons." Many newspapers and many people cen sure Governor Buchanan for commuting Colonel King's sentence, and their chief omplaint is that he was controlled by sentiment, and the first to sneer at sentiment, and the first to condemn a man for yielding to sentimental influences, have been known to go to war for sentimental reasons, and the sentimental reasons, and the sentimental reasons, and the sentimental reasons, and the sentimental reasons are sentimental reasons as the 'sentimental reasons." mental reasons, and they are always ready to justify the destruction of huma life on a large scale when it will vindicate their patriotic sentiments. If it is so noble to destroy life under entimental influences, why is it wrong to save it under the sentimental emotion caused by the suffering of an innocent wife and children?

The fact is sentiment rules the world! The Washington Post very sensibly disnisses the King case with this comment: misses the King case with this comment:
It is one of those cases with all the details of which the general public is necessarily more or less unfamiliar. We must, therefore, rest content in the belief that the legal

GEORGIA POLITICAL NOTES.

The Telegraph says that the democratic rally to be held in Macon within the next two weeks will be of "tremendous proportions." The project will be placed in the hands of the Young Men's Democratic Club, and the live young democrats of Bibb will take hold of it. The Telegraph says:

"No less than a dozen distinguished democrats can be brought here to speak. Among them such men as Northen, Gordon, Colquitt, Crisp, Blount and Turner. Besides these Macon can easily furnish a half dozen of the ablest speakers in the state. It is proposed to spread the largest barbecue ever spread in Georgia. With ten live committees put in the field at once enough carcasses can be secured to fill a table built around the half-mile track. That's a dinner a half mile long and good enough for any Georgia democrat."

What promises to be one of the largest democratic rallies ever held in the county will take place at Douglasville tonight. Speakers from a distance have been invited and one of the most enthusiastic meetings will be the result. It is the intention of the local leaders of the democracy to lead off in giving the state ticket an endorsement that will swing Douglas county into line with 500 majority. Every club in the county is expected to out in full force.

Messrs. Jacob M. Butler and Joseph C. Dicken were the managers of the barbecue neld near Watkinsville on Saturday last. One held near Watkinsville on Saturday last. One of these gentlemen is a democrat and the other a third party man, and both claim that they have been misrepresented in the reports of the meeting. They emphatisally deny that Captain Burnett was hissed while making a democratic speech; and they further state that the barbecue was gotten up principally by the third party men, but was in no sense a partisan affair; that the democrats, while not contributing much to the feast, had as much liberty there as the third party men, and that no intolerant spirit was manifested.

Of course, everybody knows how I stand on the Confederate Home, and I will do all I can for its acceptance. I am going to do my best to get around among the people of the county between now and the day of the primary, and simply make this statement that those whom I do not chance to meet may have a chance to I do not chance to meet may have a chance to know how I stand on these two important questions." Mr. King served for two years as a member of the city council of Atlanta, made a splendid record, and has a host of enthusiastic friends who are urging his candidacy for the lockletters.

The expectancy of organizing democratic clubs in the different wards of the city, was yesterday emphasized by Mr. Henry B. Wey in a manner that should commend itself t every thoughtful democrat. Mr. Wey is a practical and sound ideas. "The efficienc of clubs," said he, "in the different ward for active and thorough work cannot be over estimated. ECHOES FROM THE PEOPLE. A Charge of Discrimination.

Editor Constitution—In discussing the discrimination against Atlants, when compared with other cities, we beg leave to call attention to some of the injuries done to the commerce of the city by the rallroads.

Atlanta's prosperity is largely dependent upon the fact that it is a railroad center and a well located distributing point. His management of his own affairs, of the great interests of others entrusted to his care, and his record made when formerly an official of the city, all stamp him as a man eminently fitted it discharge the important duties of Atlanta's chief executive. In addition to his unsurpassed business qualifications, he is uniformly affable, courteous, accessible—in short, a refined gentleman. What more can we wish? As evidence that he has the second requisite, that of being available on account of the facility with which all classes can unite in gladly entrusting their interests to what they know will prove his safe keeping, the writer has heard many of Atlanta's most influential remark, since the discussion of the mayoralize will prove his safe keeping, the writer has heard many of Atlanta's most influential remark, since the discussion of the mayoralty has arisen, that they opposed Mr. Kontz two years ago solely because of a belief in his ineligibility, and that they would now enthusiastically support his candidacy. Atlanta could do no better than select Mr. Kontz as her next mayor. Very respectfully, Editor Constitution—In reply to the question in your editorial of last Sunday, let me say, that in my opinion the man who best fills the bill is Mr. Anton L. Konts. He fits the description to a T, and is one of Atlanta's trues friends. JAMES A. GRAMLING.

THE OTHER SIDE. Railroad Man Discusses the Other Side of the Situation.

Editor Constitution—The recent editorials and communications in your columns against the oppressive freight rates which undoubtedly discriminate against Atlanta have been read with much interest in railroad circles. You will admit, however, that there are generally two sides to a question, and from my point of view as a railroad man I can see another side to this freight question. Atlanta urges the raliroads to come to her relief by giving her freight rates that will not discrim-nate against her in favor of other competing nate against her in favor of other competing points. This appeal is apparently just, but, first, let us see how Atlanta treats the rail-roads. Have you not from time to time called attention to the fact that an unreasonable attention to the fact that an infrasionate hostility to the railroads concentrates all its energies right here in this city, and takes the shape of a relentiess and unscrupilous persecution, which, under the forms of law, fleeces the railroads in countless damage suits and strips them of their profits, mainly for the benefit of rasor-back lawyers, who spare no cates to work up a public sentiment against pains to work up a public se these great corporations? You know this to be a fact.

You know this to be a fact.

This persecution has been carried to such an extent, and damage cases are so artfully worked up, that judges and juries are misled by manufactured evidence, and they become honestly and unintentionally parties to a honesty and unitetationary parties to a great wrong.

Do you not remember how the Richmond and Danville's headquarters, so gladly wel-comed here, were abortly afterwards driven out of the state by the very methods I am Protesting against?

Now, if Atlanta is so anxious to have the railroads favor her, how does she propose to treat them? Will she continue to allow them to be squeezed and fleeced in her courts, as in

Think the matter over. How can you expect the railroads to concern themselves about Atlanta's interests, when Atlanta's policy threatens the bankruptcy of every railroad running through the city?

ONE ON THE PROFESSOR. The Boys at Carrollton Think the Joke's on Carrollton, Gs., August 11.—(Special.)—A good joke is told on Professor H. C. Brown, a one-armed confederate soldier and a stanch and enthusiastic democrat

Brown, a one-armed confederate soldier and a stanch and enthusiastic democrat of this city.

The professor is a fine talker and very often when he is on the public square of Carrollton great crowds gather around him to hear his elucidation of some knotty political question. Professor Brown is an enthusiastic supporter of Mr. Cleveland, and has been so for the past six or eight years. He was postmaster at Carrollton during Mr. Cleveland's administration and made a good postmaster.

The joke referred to is a good one. Mr. Brown was sitting in the ordinary's office some days ago expounding the silver question and unraveling the tariff question to a wise and dignified countryman. When Professor Brown would make a point the countryman would not his assent and smile. After a thorough sifting of the questions Professor Brown retired. The countryman at last broke the silence after Mr. Brown's departure by asking the ordinary what kind of an election was it that was held in Carrollton the day before, and the judge told him an election for governor. The countryman asked if Gordon got beat, and the judge answered "No;" that the present governor, Mr. Northen, carried the country, when the countryman exclaimed: "What! I thought Gordon was governor." Professor Brown's friends have teased him no little about spending his breath talking silver and tariff to a fellow who didn't know who the governor of Georgia was.

The Outlook for the Next Year is Very Bright, Indeed.

Cuthbert, Ga., August 11.—(Special.)—As September draws near the eyes of the average Cuthbert citizen turn to her two colleges, their prospects and usefulness for another year. From present prospects both our Andrew Female and Agricultural and Military colleges bid fair to have the largest patronage in their history. This in view of the extreme tightness in money matters speaks well. Both institutions have large and competent faculties and are betagen. ters speaks well. Both institutions large and competent faculties and are ter prepared for grander and more eff work. The new college buildings of drew Female are being rushed to cortion and already more than fifty boarding form nearly every exerts of the control of the contr tion and already more than fifty boarding pupils from nearly every section of Georgia have notified President Twitty to save room for them. Captain Miller, the newly elected president of our Agricultural and Military college, has already received assurances from many of the older pupils and quite a number of new ones stating that they are coming. Both colleges are working and the prospects seem bright that Cuthbert's colleges will be largely patronized and will do a grand and noble work for the women and young men of Georgia next year.

THEY HAVE PARTED.

The Damon and Pythias Tie Has Been Broken

HOPPIE AND LANIER. BETWEEN

And the Atlants Traction Company Finds Another Avenue Leading to the Courthouse.

The Atlanta Traction Company jumps into the courts again this morning

This time the story presents more nal features than ever before. It's a case of a house divided again itself and a bad division it seems to be.

The house of Hoppie and Lanier is no more. The Damon and Pythias ties which have bound those two young, progressive Atlantians since they sprang suddenly upon usiness world as controllers, projector and manipulators of the street railroad prop erties, have been broken.

And the chances are that they

The reading public is thoroughly familian with the history of the Atlanta Traction Company. Every one knows that the Atlanta, West End and McPherson barracks line and the Grant Park line, after having been constructed by Messrs. Woodward and Mountain were transferred to the Atlanta Traction Company. All knew, too, that the Atlanta Traction Company was a stock company with 3,000 shares of stock. The same people are cognizant of the fact that when the Traction company went into con trol that Messrs. Woodward and Mountain held 1.499 shares of stock and Messrs. Lanier and Hoppie, the projectors and organizers of the Traction company, held 1,499

The other two shares by mutual consent became the property of Hon. A. P. Stewart, the efficient and popular tax collector.

Under the new regime the two roads started upon the commercial seas with bright sailing. But before long two factions sprang up. It was a case of Mountain and Wood vard against Hoppie and Lanier.

But both were equally strong and as natural consequence the gentleman with only two shares became more powerful than either the house of Woodward and Mountain, with 1,499 shares, or the house of Hoppie and Lanier with the same amount.

Then the courts were resorted to and for days the stock owners were troubled with litigation. Finally, Hoppie and Lanier virtually won the fight.

But now Hoppie, after his victory, is laid up for repairs.

The road's treasury has never been too plethoric and some months ago Mr. Hoppie went to Chicago to increase the working capacity of the road. The machinery and other supplies were purchased from Sargent & Lundy, and the 1,499 shares of Hoppie and Lanier's were left as a security for the debt made of $28,000.

That was handing over $75,000, the market value of the 1,499 shares, to secure debt of $28,000.

That stock was the joint property of Lanier and Hoppie and was evidenced by five certificates for 250 shares each and one of 249 shares. On the books of the company this stock was the registered property of Lanier and Hoppie.

Mr. Hoppie was president of the company and Mr. Lanier was treasurer and between the two the warmest friendship ex-

A few days ago Mr. Lanier announce his intention of taking a vacation and wen away leaving in the cash drawer a ticket against himself. From Atlanta Mr. Lanier went to Chicago and called upon Sergant & Lundy. He paid them the $28,000 due them and took up the certificates of stock belonging to Lauier and Hoppie. That was the early part of this week or the latter part of last week.

On Wednesday Mr. Hoppie, who was thinking of the pleasant time his partner was having, was dumfounded by being informed that Mr. Lanier had sold his half interest, or 750 shares to Judge J. K. Hines, Mr. James W. English, Mr. E. T. Shibhigh and Mr. T. B. Felder and that jubrick and Mr. T. B. Felder and that new organization would be asked for.

At first Mr. Hoppie declined to believe the story.

But the truth was made apparent when the gentlemen who had purchased the stock appeared at a meeting of the stockholders

At that meeting were Mr. Hoppie, president, and Mr. Woodward, Mr. Mountain, Mr. Stewart and Judge Hines, Mr. Shu-brick and Mr. Felder, holding the Lanier

Mr. Hoppie called the meeting to order and Judge Hines wanted the 750 shares of Lauler transferred to the purchasers. "I can't do that," said Mr. Hoppie, "as that 1,499 shares represent a joint asset of Kanier and Hoppie and our agreement prevents that. That is joint property."

A motion was then made to Lanler and Hoppie in the board.

Mr. Mountain voted 1,499 shares for the sequently the motion was renewed and lountain was asked to put it. He did so and the vote was the same.

"I declare the motion carried," said Mr.

By that decision Messrs. Lanier and Hoppie were unseated.

The meeting adjourned with the matter

ust that way.
Subsequently Mr. Mountain, Mr. Woodward, Judge Hines, Mr. Felder and Mr. Schubrick convened. Mr. Hoppie made himself absent and so did Mr. Stewart. Then the gentlemen present proceeded to elect and organize a board of directors.

The directors were J. W. English, Jr., T. B. Felder, Jr., A. P. Stewart, H. L. Woolward and J. H. Mountain.

ward and J. H. Mountain.

The directors at once organized by electing T. B. Felder, Jr., president; J. H. Mountain, vice president and general manager, and H. L. Woodward, secretary.

Mr. Hoppie was by no means pleased when he heard the result and last nig! t was closeted with his attorneys. This morning Judge M. J. Clarke will be asked to restrain the new owners of the Lanier story from exercising any powers and from doing anything with the road. All parties interested will be asked to leave the management and control of the road wholly alone.

The paper will be a complete history of the road with all its trouble and will portray graphically the last chapter. Mr. Burton Smith's logic and Judge J. A. Anderson's humor combined will make the paper an interesting and entertaining story in-

THAT CONVENTION.

Street Corners.

THE GRANDEST CONVENTION FOR YEARS,

That Departing Delegates Were Talking About Yesterday—All Going Home to Work Hard for the Party.

The echoes of that memorable democratic convention have died away upon Atlanta's ears and the delegates have all packed their grips, paid their hotel bills, paused in the hotel corridors to tell just one more joke and gone back to busy life again.

That convention will not soon be forgotten. Time may do its destroying work, may wrinkle fond faces and whiten golden locks, years may roll on years and political parties Georgia democracy lose memory of that day's bushess or fail to feel an impulsive thrill from the enthusiastic and harmonious convention of August 10, 1892.

ria democrats have need for years and years.

That is what the old gray-headed politicians all said yesterday talking over the scenes of the day before. That is what all the delegates said as they stood ready, valise in hand, to catch their outgoing trains and they also declared that they would go home to work for the party with good cheer, unity of ambition and a newness of life.

Democracy is "way up in G."

Central Campaign Committee.

Chairman Atkinson, of the state democratic executive committee, appointed the central campaign committee yesterday.

The committee is as follows:
Charles S. Northen, H. T. Lewis, James E. Brown, R. L. Berner, A. S. Clay, F. P.. Rice, H. W. Hill, J. B. Goodwin, W. B. Burnett, R. U. Hardeman, W. L. Calhuon, E. P. Howell, H. H. Cabaniss, T. B. Neal, Jacob Haas, Tom Eason, J. W. Murphey, W. H. Ross, James Whitehead.
Chairman Akinson places Mr. Charles S. Northen's name at the head of the committee and 10 party in Georgia will congratulate him in this evidence of wisdom, not only in the selection, but in the suggestion that goes with this prominence given Mr. Northen's name.

Mr. Atkinson will himself be ex-officio chairman of the central campaign committee, but the committee itself will elect a vice chairman or acting presiding officer, and catching the spirit of Mr. Atkinson's insinuation, will doubtless elect Mr. Northen to that position.

Mr. Northen is a shrewd and a capable

Mr. Northen is a shrewd and a capable organizer. He has had training in many hot contests and his work in organizing the forces for Governor William J. Northen in his last campaign is known and recognized by all the politicians of Georgia.

He would make a splendid officer if placed in this position and will doubtless be placed there, there being no more earnest and no more active member of the committee than himself.

Earl Jackson left Atlanta Wednesday afternoon on a Western and Atlantic freight train. Before getting on the train he gave the negro brakeman all the money he had on earth—just 20 cents—to carry him to Chattanoga. He said he was a plumber whose home was in St. Louis; had come to Atlanta to get work, and, failing to secure it, was returning home. The brakeman gave Jackson a place in a box car, but pretty soon the conductor discovered him and forced him to get off. Jackson demanded that the negro return him his money, which the negro refused to do.

Some words passed and Jackson struck the brakeman and knocked him down. The negro ran back to the caboose and, picking up a shotgun, fired at Jackson. The charge took effect in Jackson's face, and it was badly burnt by powder.

It Will Take Place This Afternoon from the Home on Washington Street. This afternoon at half-past 4 o'clock the unerst of Mrs. Louis Wellhouse will take lace from the family residence, Washington treet, at the corner of Richardson. No death has brought to Atlanta more genuine sorrow than this, cutting short, as it does, a sweet young life. Mrs. Wellhouse was one of the most beautiful and most charming of Atlanta's young matrons. Four years ago she, as Miss Hirsch, wedded Mr. Louis Wellhouse. Her home was in Little Rock; and hearty was the welcome she received when she came to Atlanta to make her home. Many warm friends has she made during her residence here and sincerely has she been admired by all who knew her.

Her illness has been of short duration, and the news of her death was a great shock. She leaves a husband and two children; the eldest was three years old the day her mother died, the youngest is an infant ten days old.

Jimmy Long don't belong to Atlanta any

Kelly.

And it's all due to Jimmy's own work. When the season opened Jimmy Long signed a contract to play with Atlanta. and was anxious to come here. He had never played ball professionally before, and was glad to get the contract. Soon after Long came to Atlanta his brother died, and the management of the club sent him home, paying his railroad fare both ways ing him his time. It was not lo before Long showed that he was a goo ball player, and the management, saying a word to Long until pay day came, added $15 a month to his salary.

That pleased Long, but he did not play any better ball after it was done. But for a good while his work was satisfactory, and again he received a neat increase in his monthly stipend. Within the past few days Long, whose head had been badly swollen by injudicious newspaper puffs, praise and the dollars tossed to him for his good work, began beefing badly. He declared he wouldn't play with the club unless he was given more pay. Manager Morton knew that Long was a good ball player, and on Tuesday went to Long, Hill and Schabel and agreed to increase the pay of each. The amount of the increase was perfectly satisfactory to every one, and everything looked bright.

The players have been payed off on the 1st and 15th of every month, but as the team was going away on the 10th Mr. Bosche paid them off that day-five days before the money was due.

That is something unusual under base-ball rules. If a team leaves home, by the rules, the day before pay day, the club is under no obligations to pay off until they return—even if the trip lasts a month. That is a part of every baseball contract under the national agreement.

The checks given out by Mr. Bosche did not include the increase given to Long, Hill and Schabel, as the new contract was not to be retroactive. Long didn't like that, and wanted the amount that would have been due him had the contract gone into effect on the 1st. He did a great deal talking on the streets, but said nothing to Mr. Morton until that night, just before the train left. Manager Morton heard Long's story, and after reasoning with him awhile, said:
"Jimmy, you are not entitled to that money, but I'll give it to you on this trip."

Long declined to go unless Morton gave im the money in advance. That Charley Morton refused to do, telling Long that he'd lay him off. Long had been drinking and the drink probably got better of his judgment. Kelly has been wanting Long all the summer and yesterday when Manager Morton went through Mobile he traded Long to Kelly for Gettinger, a big, strong, swift, hard-hitting elder. Kelly at once tele-graphed Long to come to Mobile at once, but Long has not gone.

If Long don't go to Mobile Manager Morton will make it his duty to see that he don't play in any club in the union. don't play in any club in the union.

Long is a fair ball player and the Atlanta management knows it well and twice acknowledged it by raising his salary without any complaint from Long. But Long has given the management lots of trouble no one on the outside knows anything about. It is simply a repetition of an old story in baseball. Injudicious praise spoiled Long. He had begun to think he was indispensable to the club.

For Long's own goed it is to be hoped that he will go on to Mobile and play ball. He can't play any more in Atlanta and if he don't go to Mobile he won't be allowed to play anywhere.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING Will Be Held at the Executive Mansie

This Afternoon.

The ladies interested in the Loan Association for the Normal and Industrial college will hold an important meeting at the executive mansion this afternoon.

The association is already an assured successive mansion that are taking and the work of the work of the second of the sec

Forsyth, Ga., August 11.—(Special.)—Yesterday afternoon Messrs. G. R. Banks, W. H. Turner, G. B. Thweatt, C. B. Alexander and C. H. Steward went swallow shooting. In the hour's shooting it is estimated that they killed between four and five thousand swallows. There was a count of 3,845 made and several were left on the grounds. The birds were put in a box and it required the strength of two robust negroes to remove them.

Manufacturing Optician,

It seemed that in the chase Patrolman Mehaffey's gun went wild, and the bullets from it wandered from their course.

Mr. George W. Moore lives at the corner of Piedmont avenue and Gilmer street. He was standing on the front porch of his residence when the negro ran by. A moment later a bullet whizzed by his head and buried itself in the side of the house behind him. He says his escape was a narrow one. The next shot, he says, struck the next house adjoining his.

He reported the case to Chief Connolly, and is very indignant over it. Chief Connolly is having the case investigated by Captain Thompson.

Chief Connolly says he is goir to have the case sifted to the very bottom.

"An officer," says he, "has no right to handle his pistol carlessly, and if I heer of such a case the officer will be at once suspended. I will have to do this to protect the life of citizens. An officer has no right to fire in the air at random."

Mr. Moore insists that the case be investigated. 12 Whitehall Street, Atlanta

Miller's Estate, 60 Peachtree street. A Flood of Letters—Scores of Entries—The Profits of the "Hourly"—Character of Settlers—Major Rousseau.

Not since the suburb of Manchester begun its brilliant career, has there been such a nest of visitors, such an inquiry at the business office, or such a sale of lots as during the last ten days.

Côlonel E. M. Blalock, president of the company, looked radiant yesterday in his Wall street office, as he was discussing the outlook as presented by present conditions.

"I believe," said he, "that Manchester is going to surprise even me with its rapid and substantial growth. I have always been sanguine, but the results have more been sanguine, but the results have more than realized my expectations. The crowd of inquirers is by no means confined to Atlanta. People from all over the state are coming to see Manchester, and my mail from different sections is full of letters that indicate interest and intention."

"Did the state convention furnish many visitors and inquirers?"

"Did the state convention furnish many misitors and inquirers?"

"A great many more than I expected. Politicians, as a rule, are not home builders or home seekers, but I could open here a score or more of entries which would show you the practical interest manifested by the democracy's representatives. But here are several facts which speak louder than words in the matter of Manchester's popularity and growth.

"The Manchester 'hourly,' the new train just put on by the Atlanta and West Point railroad, is already paying nicely—an unprecedented record in new trains, and plainly indicative of the current of travel and observation in that direction. There, for instance, is the 'hourly,' just coming in. Look at the exits as it comes to a stop,"

And looking the reporter saw a trio of full cars empty themselves into the union carshed.

"Another thing" said Colone Bislock.

"Another thing," said Colonel Blalock,
Major Rousseau, the architect, informs me

the contractor's engagements, he has work with a worker as rapid and diligent as Major Rousseau, this means that an enormous quantity of new buildings are going on and contracted for.

"Another pointer, none of the new lots, recently purchased, are for sale. No man who has gone there is dissatisfied with his investment, and, instead of desiring to unload, every investor is auxious to enlarge his possessions as rapidly as possible.

"Look again at the class of people who have already invested there. They are not new and inexperienced property owners. Almost to a rule, they are men who have had experience in property values, and trained discretion to discriminate in the relative values of real estate. I do not know anything in our present condition that pays a higher tribute to Manchester than the quality and experienced intelligence of the men who have already settled

A Ghost Scare in Abbeville.

Abbeville, Ga., August 11.—(Special.)—
A ghost scare is on in this vicinity. A few nights since a number of young men, while going home, were confronted by a strange white object. They fled and, in making their escape from their imaginary enemy, they came in contact with a sleeping herd of cows, and the stampede was so great that the attention of the marshal was attracted towards the noise. True to appear in court the next morning. When the consternation of the previous night was fully understood, the boys were liberated, with the understanding that they be careful in the future.

The Hogs Tried to Kill Him.

Due West, Ga., August 11.—(Special.)—
The little three-year-old son of C. A. Kemp elimbed to the top of the fence of the hog sit while the hogs were eating some fruit and fell over the fence among the hogs and broke his left arm. The hogs, four in number, full grown, took hold of the little fellow and tore his clothes, and but for the timely arrival of his father, they would have literally torn him to pieces.

The Wright's Bridge Gnost. Dawson, Ga. August 11.—(Special.)—The story of the Wright's bridge ghost has awakened considerable interest here. The only killing that ever occurred near the bridge was that of some Indians in 1836 in a fight with the whites, and it is supposed that the ghosts in that vicinity have some connection with the killing of these Indians. The negroes in the vicinity are badly frightened.

Some wakeful guests at the hotel discovered the accident before the newly wedded ones were apphysiated, thus averting a disastrous termination of a bridal tour. BALLARD HOUSE.

Aid to Home Builders at Manchester.

The Manchester Investment Company are certainly an enterprising crowd, and their enterprise is rapidly developing one of Atlanta's most beautiful suburbs into, what will soon be one of the most delightful residence towns in the south. In order to hasten this development the company now makes another inimigable stroke. They offer to pay one-tenth of the cost of any and all residences built upon lots bought from them, provided that no house thus built shall cost less than $1,000, and provided further, that the building be begun by september 1, 1892. This offer has stimulated a large number of persons to begin building at once, and in a few days the rattle of the hammer and the buzs of the saw will make music from one end of Manchester to the other.

THE NEW YORK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, August 11.—There was little in the stock market today outside of Coal shares and little of them outside of Reading, trading in which was extremely large, measured by the standard which has prevailed of late, while its weakness gave tone to the whole market. There was conspicuous weakness only in Louisville and Nashville among the leading shares and the loss was partially recovered with a rally in the rest of the market. Reading at the same time showing a great recuperative power. The share list remained almost entirely barren of feature during the latter portion of the day, after the completion of the movement mentioned and the only feature of note was the comparative activity in Sliver certificates, which rapidly settled down, selling below 83 for the first time since they were listed. Again the only pronounced strength was displayed by Industrials, but even in these the upward movement was not marked except in Cotton Oil. The opening of the market was made at irregular changes, and while the government crop report was considered favorable in Wall street, its influence upon the stock market was hardly apparent, and the selling of Reading gave the market what character it possessed in early trading. The transactions reached 210,000 listed. 12,000, unlisted;

J. S. Bache & Co.'s Stock Letter. By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager. NEW YORK, August 11.—The street ex-pected an estimate of 84c for corn, and was, therefore, surprised to see but 82 1-2c. Prices therefore, surprised to see but 82 1-2c. Prices here opened about steady, and Europe supported the market, buying about 6,000 shares of stocks. Still, the market did not hold long, as a decided weakness soon cropped out in Reading, which was attacked by the Cammack interest, and we think a good deal of long stock was forced out. It was said that the decision of Chancellor MeGill would be adverse to the coal combination, but, as far as we can hear, the decision is not to come out before about the 20th instant. The bears were also moderately active in the other stocks, and, as far as we could see, more long stock came on the market today than for many weeks past. Of course, the bears were not sparing in their offers, and they no doubt increased their lines to some extent. Korthern Pacific preferred was sold on reports of damage to crops in Dakota and Washington, and some stop orders were reached, while the selling in Louisville and Nashville was on the disappointing carnings and poor condition in the south. The shorts tried to make an impression on Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, disappointing carnings and poor condition in the south. The shorts tried to make an impression on Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, but were not thoroughly successful. There is a short interest in this stock that refuses to cover, and it is impossible to find out for whom all this stock has been sold. The stock is renewed every day, and it looks as if the party who is short of the stock is in for big money one way or the other. The decline in silver to the lowest price it has yet sold at is beginning to become a factor in this market, and some opinions are expressed that it will so demoralize England's business with India that it is bound to be felt in London. The market does not look encouraging to us. There is a possibility of a little gold going out Saturday, and we advise our friends to sell stocks on rallies.

Hindbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEIV YORK, August 11—Liverpool this morning started cut promisingly for the bulls. Futures opened firm at an advance of 2-81d, and spot sales were 10,000 bales. Before the close, however, the entire advance and an additional 2-61d had been lost upon the news of a deciline to 88;4d for silver in London. The lowest quotation previously recorded had been 185,4d, and this deciline of 14d per ounce in the value of the metal within two days bears heavily upon the English manfacturer, whose goods are paid for in a currency so rapidly depleciating and naturally offsets the effect of any favorable influence. What the destiny of the white metal is to be is still a most perplexing problem to the commercial world, and uncertainty as to its solution has a most unsettling effect upon the trade. Naturally the influences so seriously affecting the foreign trade were promptly felt here, and our market opened at a decline of 5 points, and during the forence on the course of prices are valueless, but with any recovery in aliver the situation abroad seems likely to improve. The government report issued yesterday is almost forgotten today. Rains in Texas continue to be well distributed, and are reported to be doing good. Elsewhere worms and shedding are the result of too much moisture. During the afferment her early is almost forgotten today. Rains in Texas continue to be deling and the consequent il quintation has been large. Whether it is over or not remains to be seen. The short interest has unquestionably been much increased today, and with any encouragement from abroad a raily is in order.

Lehman Brote Cotton Letter.

have shown any such marked weakness as they did. The first quotations were at about the previous prices. Subsequently the different cables quoted declines in all of about 3-54d resulting in a corresponding loss here of about 5 points, at which the market held steady until shortly before the close, when under the influence of a general desire to sell, a further decline of 5 points set in. The further decline in silver and consequently the depression which is reported from Manchester are the weak features in the position. Out-sideof this there is nothing on which to bear cotton. On the contrary, the outcome of the present crop is by no means a certain fact; so that with any adverse reports from this out minor influences will be lost sight of, and values will undoubtedly enhance considerably.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions. CHICAGO, August 111—The bullish character of the CHICAGO, August 111—The bullish character of the government errop report on corn, wheat and oats was the controlling feature in the cereal pits on the board of trade this morning, and all of them started higher, but at the advance there was some free selling and some bear news received, and the advance was more than lost. Subsequent fluctuations left them with comparatively slight changes from yesterday's final quotations. Wheat is 350 lower, corn 350 higher and oats he lower.

There was a lighter trade than usual in provisions There was a lighter trade than usual in provisions, and weakness resulted from the selling of local hold-ors, there being an especially active selling movement in January pork and lard. Big hog receipts were an important factor. Fully 27,000 hogs arrived today, and they sold off 106,18c. September pork opened 7% lower at $12.75, and after touching $12.72% advanced to $12.90, then broke to $12.70, rallied and closed at $12.87%, an advance of 6c. Lard closed 2% chigher and ribs are 10c up. The leading futures ranged as follows

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager. By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager. CHICAGO, August 11.—The speculator who has tried to keep track of the market today from statistics and outside reports had a hard time of it. The government report shows a considerable falling off in the previous estimate. The Chichnati Price Current makes a still further reduction. English correspondents report the Russian crop only about 190,000,000 bushels, against 304,000,000 in 1834 and 178,000,000 in 1891. Reports from Callfornia still continue to be unfavorable as threshing progresses. Liverpoot and London are from 1-2 to 1 1-2d higher. On the other hand, Terlin is reported about 4c per bushel lower; Parls depressed and a shade lower. St. Louis reports a dull, neavy market, and receipts continue large. The steady decline st. Louis reports a duit, neavy market, and receipts continue large. The steady decline of the opening was caused by St. Louis and New York parties seiling. These markets being relatively higher than Chicago caused the spreaders also to sell here and buy elsewhere.

the spreaders also to sell here and buy elsewhere.

There was some good realizing in corn by some of the large holders, which caused 1 1-4c decline, a part of which was recovered at the close. Reports concerning the condition were scarce, speculators acting on what they already have received; the more enthustastic ones on what they expect to receive soon, when the time for frost scarces comes nearer. Onts continue very strong. The demand is good. Reports from the threshers continue unfavorable.

Receipts of hogs were 27.000—about 8,000 more than estimated yesterday; packing for the week, about 75.000 more than one year ago. The opening was weak, and at one time prices were a shade lower than yesterday. Later the market became steady, closing a shade higher than yesterday.

Their National Convention to Be Held

A LARGE DELEGATION FROM GEORGIA

Atlanta Is Spoken of as the Next Place for the Convention to Meet-In-teresting Programme.

The real estate men of Atlanta, and of the whole country, so far as that goes, are looking forward with much concern to the next convention of the National Real Estate Association.

The second congress, or convention, of the association will be held in Buffalo, N. Y., early in October, remaining in session on the 4th, 5th, and 6th of that month. It will be held at Music hall of that city and will be largely attended by real estate men from the north, south and west.

Many of the real estate agents of Atlanta and other cities of Georgia will go to the Mr. Samuel W. Goode, of this city, is vice president of the association from Ge

In the matter of transportation, while the various railroad associations will make a reduction, on the certificate plan, to a rate of a fare and one-third, it is urged that vice presidents of the associations, or others interested, organize especial excursions from various points. In this way low rates will be obtained and a large

For the recreation of the congress the committee has arranged for trips by rail and by the beautiful river route to Ningara Faits, where an opportunity will be afforded to inspect the big tunnel as well as to view the great cataract; also for carriage drives about the city and park system and visits to its prominent public buildings, and it is earnestly desired and hoped that there will be a very large representation present from all parts of the United States, and that the ranks of the association will be materially extended by new and active members.

materially extended by new and active members.

Many subjects of importance to real estate men will be discussed and the gathering cannot fail to be of material benefit to all interested in real estate transactions and to promote the comprehensive and desirable objects of the association.

In addition to the business features of the congress the Buffalo committee will provide ample entestainment for visitors and the will-known hospitality of the city will be warmly extended to all who attend.

Buffalo has ample hotel accommodations. The committee will be pleased to secure rooms upon notification to the secretary, R. C. Hill, of Buffalo.

It is said that Buffalo, through its local real estate men, will spend at least $10,000.

At the first engress, when the association was organized in Nashville, early this year, there were only three representatives from Georgia—Messrs. J. C. Hendrix, D. Morrison and Samuel W. Goode—and they all report that the meeting was very instructive and pleasant, and Messrs. Hendrix and Goode both hold official relations to the association, and are quite anxious to have a large delegation of the real estate men of Georgia attend the Buffalo meet. have a large delegation of the real estate men of Georgia attend the Buffalo meet-

Membership of the national association can be had by sending $3 and the agent's name to M. M. Kline, secretary, at Nashville.

Perhaps a full representation from Georgia will result in bringing the national association here in 1893, and to have so many men who are directly interested in the material development of the country, assemble in Atlanta, would vastly advertise and benefit the city and state.

BREWER AT LIBERTY.

The Charge Against Him Settled, and the

R. T. Brewer is at liberty again, and the warrant against him charging him with cheating and swindling has been withdrawn.

Brewer was arrested at Covington Wednesday by Sheriff Anderson, and brought back to Atlanta yesserday by Detective Crim. It will be remembered in settling the matter anicably and Brewer was released. It will be remembered that Brewer was arrested on a warrant sworn out by F. J. Stilson, the jeweler, who claimed that Brewer had obtained a valuable diamond ring from him, representing that he was going to sell it to a friend and would pay for it as soon as he could get the money from his friend. He did not get the money from his friend. He matter was settled by Brewer returning the ring, and Mr. Stilson paying all costs in the case.

Brewer denies that he is guilty of cheating and swindling. He says he bought the ring Warrant Withdrawn.

ON A PERIODICAL DRUNK.

Grocerman Gunn Makes Things Lively i

His Home.

William H. Gunn has a thriving grocery store at the corner of Glenn and McDanlei streets. He and his family live in a house annexed to the store. They have lived happily always, before last night.

Gunn is industrious, attentive to business, and kind to his wife and children.

Yesterday, however, Gunn decided to get on a razsee, and he came up town and carried home several bottles of beer. He drank the Budweiser, and each drink made him more bolsterous. Finally, after a number of bottles had been emptied. Gunn became abusive and threatened to whip his wife and little ones. He became worse as she became frightened, and he ran her out of the house.

She ran out and telephoned for an officer. Callman Beavers responded and arrested Gunn and one bottle of beer. It was all that remained of the supply laid up by the grocer.

Gunn and his beer were transferred to the police station and this afternoon he will have to answer for his conduct before the recorder.

Mrs. Young, a comely matron, dressed in a fashionable costume, and a number of gentlemen who board at her place, appeared in court as witnesses against Young. Mrs. Davis, the lady boarder, who helped to tear Young away from his wife while he was beating her, and who defied him to strike her, was with Mrs. Young. The witnesses in the case were all highly respect. witnesses in the case were all highly respect-witnesses in the case were all highly respect-ed people and seemed to be deeply wrought up over Young's treatment of his wife.

Mrs. Young told the story in a clear, comprehensive way, and as she talked a deep blush suffuased her cheeks. The crowd in the courtroom listened attentively to the lady's testimony. She told the story, giving the facts in the case as given in yesterday's Constitution. She told of his return hor in a drunken condition, of his coming into the parlor and attacking her. He had torn her clothing almost entirely from her per-son, she said, and had beaten her most unmercifully, after throwing her violently

Several of the boarders testified to the same facts. The testimony given was practically the same as the facts published in The Constitution of yesterday; there was no material difference.

Recorder Calhoun asked Young for his statement of the case. He is a big corpulent fellow and looked at the recorder in a scared sort of way.
"I guess I'm guilty," said he. "I don't

Young stood before the recorder balf dazed, and gazed longingly after her. But she walked down the stairway and went home. She said not a word to her husbaud, nor did she offer any nid. Young was put back in prison. Later in the day Young paid the fine and succeeded in giving bond.

HIS WIFE WAS DYING,

And the Case Against Motorman Timblin Was Postnoned.

The case against Robert Timblin, the motorman, which has been four times set for a hearing, and which was to have been tried before the recorder yesterday afternoon was again postponed.

Timblin, the defendant, was not in court, and just as Recorder Calhoun was going to inquire why he was not in court and was going to fine him for contempt, Timblin's attorney arose and said that his client had been called to Birmingham to the bedside of his dying wife.

"Then," said Judge Calhoun, "the case is postponed until Saturday."

BOUND OVER FOR WIFE BEATING,

With His Wife and Little Ones as the Only Witnesses-He Is a

J. H. Gowan, a nice looking, well-dressed man about thirty years of age, went to the city stockade for a term of thirty days yesterday afternoon.

He presented a striking contrast dressed in faultless attire as he was, to the ragged and unwashed throng that Uncle Jimmie Parrish hustled into Bruce Harris's big van to be carried to the stockade.

Gowan appeared listless and indifferent, and looked at times as if he were in a dream. Gowan was tried yesterday afternoon be fore Recorder Calhoun on a charge of disorderly conduct and was given thirty days or $25 and costs.

Fis wife, a sad-faced lady, gave the evidence upon which Gowan was convicted. She said that he had cruelly beaten and misused her on Wednesday afternoon at their home at 68 Leonard street. He came home in a jealous rage and, saying some thing about her affections being alle from him by a third person, sprang upon her and began beating her. She denied his insinuations and he choked her. She said he had choked her until she was almost suffocated and was black in the face. The couple have not been getting along well for several weeks, and the trouble yester-day was the result of their past domestic differences.

After being choked and beaten by her husband, Mrs. Gowan went in search of an officer. She found Patrolman Seals and Chandler and they arrested Gowan at her

Yesterday morning Mrs. Gowan called to Yesterday morning Mrs. Gowan called to see Chief Connolly to be advised how to act in the case. Chief Connolly advised her to swear out a peace warrant against her husband. Acting on this counsel she went before Justice Orr and swore out the warrant. As he was in the police station it was not served.

Gowan was tried before the recorder in the afternoon with the result already stated.

Gowan was tried before the recorder in the afternoon with the result already stated. He offered no defense for his conduct except to say that he was entirely justified by what he had done. When asked if Mrs. Gowan was his wife he shook his head and said she was not. He seemed to care very little which way the case went.

After fining Gowan $25 and costs in the city case Recorder Calhoun bound him over on a state charge of wife beating, fixing the bond at $150. Gowan made no attempt to give bond nor to pay his fine. Gowan has the easy appearance of a man of the world and is well educated. He is a Bostonian and recently moved to Atlanta. In the city of baked beans he was in the dry goods business and came here with the intention of continuing in the business. He has four little children.

After his term in the city stockade is out he will still have to answer to the charge of wife beating and to the peace warrant sworn out by his wife.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS

Their Kational Convention to Be Held in Buffalo.

A LARGE DELEGATION FROM GEORGIA

Atlanta Is Speken of as the Next Place for the Convention to Meet-Interesting Programme.

The real estate men of Atlanta, and of the whole country, so far as that goes, are looking forward with much concern to the next convention of the National Real Estate Association.

Y., early in October, remaining in session on the 4th, 5th, and 6th of that month.

It will be held at Music hall of that city and will be largely attended by real estate men from the north, south and west.

"Proper Building Construction from an Insurance Standard"—Hon. F. C. Moore, president N. B. of F. U.

"The Niagara Falls Tunnel"—Hon. Peter A. Porter, of Niagara Falls, N. Y.

"Titles and Transfers"—Hon. J. Cradock Simpson, of Montreal.

In the matter of transportation, while the various railroad associations will make a reduction, on the certificate plan, to a rate of a fare and one-third, it is urged that vice presidents of the associations, or others interested, organize especial excursions from various points. In this way low rates will be obtained and a large attendance can be secured.

For the recreation of the congress the committee has arranged for trips by rail and by the beautiful river route to Niagara Falls, where an opportunity will be afforded to inspect the big tunnel as well as to view the great cataract; also for carriage drives about the city and park system and visits to its prominent public buildings, and it is earnestly desired and hoped that there will be a very large representation present from all parts of the United States, and that the ranks of the associations will be it is earnestly desired and hoped that there will be a very large representation present from all parts of the United States, and that the ranks of the association will be materially extended by new and active members.

In addition to the business features of the congress the Buffalo committee will provide ample entertainment for visitors and the well-known hospitality of the city will be warmly extended to all who attend.

Buffalo has ample hotel accommodations. The committee will be pleased to secure rooms upon notification to the secretary, R. C. Hill, of Buffalo.

It is said that Buffalo, through its local real estate men, will spend at least $10,000 At the first engress, when the association was organized in Nashville, early this year, there were only three representatives from Georgia—Messrs. J. C. Hendrix, D. Morrison and Samuel W. Goode—and they all report that the meeting was very instructive and pleasant, and Messrs. Hendrix and Goode both hold official relations to the association, and are quite anxious to drix and Goode both hold official relations to the association, and are quite anxious to have a large delegation of the real estate men of Georgia attend the Buffalo meet-

Membership of the national association can be had by sending $3 and the agent's name to M. M. Kline, secretary, at Nash-

Perhaps a full representation from Georgia will result in bringing the national association here in 1893, and to have so many men who are directly interested in the material development of the country, assemble in Atlanta, would vastly advertise and benefit the city and state.

BREWER AT LIBERTY.

The Charge Against Him Settled, and the R. T. Brewer is at liberty again, and the warrant against him charging him with cheating and swindling has been withdrawn.

Brewer was arrested at Covington Wednesday by Sheriff Anderson, and brought back to Atlanta yesnerday by Detective Crim. Hast night Mrs. Brewer succeeded in settling the matter amicably and Brewer was released. It will be remembered that Brewer was arrested on a warrant sworn out by F. J. Stilson, the jeweler, who claimed that Brewer had obtained a valuable diamond ring from him, representing that he was going to sell it to a friend and would pay for it as soon as he could get the money from his friend. He did not get the money from his friend. He did not get the warrant.

The matter was settled by Brewer returning the ring, and Mr. Stilson paying all costs in the case.

Brewer denies that he is guilty of cheating Warrant Withdrawn.

The case.

Brewer denies that he is guilty of cheating and swindling. He says he bought the ring and could not pay for it.

ON A PERIODICAL DRUNK.

William H. Gunn has a thriving grocery store at the corner of Glenn and McDaniel streets. He and his family live in a house annexed to the store. They have lived happily always, before last night.

Gunn is industrious, attentive to business, and kind to his wife and children.

Yesterday, however, Gunn decided to get on a rassee, and he came up town and carried home several bottles of beer. He drank the Budweiser, and each drink made him more bolsterous. Finally, after a number of bottles had been emptied. Gunn became abusive and threatened to whip his wife and little ones. He became worse as she became frightened, and he ran her out of the house.

She ran out and telephoned for an officer. Caliman Beavers responded and arrested Gunn and one bottle of beer. It was all that remained of the supply laid up by the grocer.

Gunn and his beer were transferred to the police station and this afternoon he will have to answer for his conduct before the recorder.

Association.

A meeting of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association is called for next Wednesday. The meeting will be held in Atlanta and the association's future will probably he determined then.

There is strong opposition among the officials in one or two of the large systems to continuing the association. How far this will influence the managements cannot be said. Some railroad men are predicting the dissolution of the association at the expiration of the present contract.

John Young's Wife Regards Him in the Police Court.

HE WAS FINED AND BOUND OVER The Wife-Beater Tried Before the Recorder Yesterday Afternoon-His Wife

Testifies Against Him.

John D. Young was fined in the recorder's court yesterday and bound over to swer to the state courts on the charge of beating his wife. Mrs. Young, a comely matron, dressed in fashionable costume, and a survey of fashionable costume, and a number of themen who board at her place, appeared in court as witnesses against Young.

Mrs. Davis, the lady boarder, who helped to tear Young away from his wife while he was beating her, and who defied him to strike her, was with Mrs. Young. The witnesses in the case were all highly respected people and seemed to be deeply wrought up over Young's treatment of his wife.

Mrs. Young told the story in a clear, comprehensive way, and as she talked a deep blush suffuased her cheeks. The crowd in the courtroom listened attentively to the lady's testimony. She told the story, giving the facts in the case as given in yesterday's Constitution. She told of his return homin a drunken condition, of his coming into parlor and attacking her. He had torn her clothing almost entirely from her per-son, she said, and had beaten her most unmercifully, after throwing her violently in the hall. Several of the boarders testified to the same facts. The testimony given was practically the same as the facts published in The Constitution of yesterday; there was no material difference. Recorder Calhoun asked Young for his fellow and looked at the recorder in s scared sort of way.

"I guess I'm guilty," said he. "I don't nber; I was drunk. I don't know what statement of the case. He is a big corpulent

"Yes." said Judge Calhoun, severely, "I guess you were and I will have to deal heavily with you. It is a case where I cannot be lenient. I will give you a fine of $25 and costs in the city case, and will bind your over to the city court on a state charge of wife beating."

When the recorder announced his decision Mrs. Young arose and left the courtroom with Mrs. Davis. Young stood before the recorder half dazed, and gazed longingly after her. But she walked down the stair way and went home. She said not a word to her husband, nor did she offer any aid. The boarders at Mrs. Young's also left, and Young was put back in prison. Later in the day Young paid the fine and succeeded in giving bond.

AN ORDER ISSUED

By Chief Connolly Containing the Section Defining the Fire Limits. Chief Connolly has issued to every officer on the force typewritten copies of section 595 of the city code, defining the fire limits.

HIS WIFE WAS DYING,

And the Case Against Motorman The case against Robert Timblin, the motorman, which has been four times set for a hearing, and which was to have been tried before the recorder yesterday afternoon was again postponed.

Timblin, the defendant, was not in court, and just as Recorder Calhoun was going to inquire why he was not in court and was going to fine him for contempt. Timblin's attorney arose and said that his client had been called to Birmingham to the bedside of his dring wife.

"Then," said Judge Calhoun, "the case is postpored until Saturday."

TO THE STOCKADE

Went Well-Dressed, Well-Educated John H. Gowan Yesterday.

BOUND OVER FOR WIFE BEATING,

His Wife and Little Ones Only Witnesses-He Is a Bostonian.

J. H. Gowan, a nice looking, well-dress man about thirty years of age, went to the city stockade for a term of thirty days yesterday afternoon

He presented a striking contrast dressed in faultless attire as he was, to the ragged and unwashed throng that Uncle Jimmie Parrish hustled into Bruce Harris's big van to be carried to the stockade.

Gowan appeared listless and indifferent, and looked at times as if he were in a dream. Gowan was tried yesterday afternoon be ore Recorder Calhoun on a charge of dis orderly conduct and was given thirty days or $25 and costs.

His wife, a sad-faced lady, gave the evidence upon which Gowan was convicted, She said that he had cruelly beaten and their home at 68 Leonard street. He came home in a jealous rage and, saying some-thing about her affections being alienated from him by a third person, sprang upon her and began beating her. She denied his in-sinuations and he choked her. She said he had choked her until she was almost suffocated and was black in the face. The couple have not been getting along well for several weeks, and the trouble yesterday was the result of their past don

After being choked and beaten by her husband, Mrs. Gowan went in search of an officer. She found Patrolman Seals and Chaudler and they arrested Gowan at her request.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Gowan called to see Chief Connolly to be advised how to act in the case. Chief Connolly advised her to swear out a peace warrant against her husband. Acting on this counsel she went before Justice Orr and swore out the warrant. As he was in the police station was not served.

Gowan was tried before the recorder in

Gowan was tried before the recorder in the afternoon with the result already stated. He offered no drense for his conduct except to say that he was entirely justified by what he had done. When asked if Mrs. Gowan was his wife he shook his head and said she was not. He seemed to care very little which way the case went.

After fining Gowan $25 and costs in the city case Recorder Calhoun bound him over on a state charge of wife beating, fixing the bond at $150. Gowan made no attempt to give bond nor to pay his fine. Gowan has the easy appearance of a man of the world and is well educated. He is a Bostonian and recently moved to Atlanta. In the city of baked beans he was in the dry goods business and came here with the intention of continuing in the business. He has four little children.

After his term in the city stockade is out he will rill head to the continuing the continuing on the continuing of the continuing in the business. business. He has four little children.

night well laden with happy recollections of the day.

The reunion was one of the happiest and most pleasant the command has ever had. Phillips's Legion planned the reunion and the Cobb Legion was there by invitation. The guests were most royally and delightfully entertained by the members of the Phillips Legion and by the ladies of Canton. A great basket dinner and an old-time southern barbecue were provided, and as the good things were disposed of the old veterans laughed over the hard, trying struggle through which they had gone half starved.

struggle through which they had gone half starved.

During the morning General Phillips, Hon. T. R. R. Cobb and Colonel W. L. Calhom spoke.

As General Phillips arose to speak he was given a reception by his old soldiers that was most touchingly tender. The other speakers were received with the same love and veneration.

After the great feast of good things the survivors of Cobb's Legion of infantry and cavalry joined in the organization of an association. Captain J. J. Barnes, of Atlanta, was elected president and Mr. C. W. Mitchell, of Atlanta, vice president. The organization decided to hold a graad reunion in Atlanta in August, 1893, and by resolution the Phillips Legion was invited to be present. to be present.

DEATH OF SAM DANIEL.

He Passed Away at the Home of His Brother in Oglethorpe, Brother in Oglethorpe.

The Atlanta fire department sustains a severe loss in the death of Mr. Sam Daniel. He died at the home of his brother near Woodville Wednesday. He was Chief Joyner's private secretary for a long time and was one of the best known men in town. Not long ago he was aken with a very severe case of fever and at the instance of his physician, went out in the country to recover.

Last week word was received stating that he was better, but yesterday the sad news Not long ago his brother, Mr. Tom Daniel, died in this city. Both were very much loved and respected by everybuy who knew them. The interment was in enfield, Ga., his former home, yesterday. AT THE EDGEWOOD

"Fra Diavolo" Sung by Request by the MacCollin Company.

"Fra Diavalo" was very caditably sung last night by the MacCollin Opera Company at the Edgewood.

A good house was in attendance, and considerable applause was given the performers for their fairly good work.

Mr. Apple sang the title role, while Miss. Hall played Zerlina, The sextet from Luc'a, was not as brilliantly sung as it has been, and it was very perceptible, there was more or less drowsiness displayed in its 'rendition. The last week should be the heist.

Mr. Bone took a seat in a very dignified way as became the dignity of his visit. He was on a mission of peace. He carried a flag of truce—nay the white flag of surrender.

He was on a mission of peace. He carried a flag of truce—nay the white flag of surrender. On Monday Chief Connolly sent notices to all the residents of Hobo Hollow, classed in the category of disorderly persons, to remove within three days. As a result nearly all of the disreputable ones got out. Among the number notified to leave was Mrs. Bone. She owned the celebrated Hobo castle. Her's was the resort where carousal and revelry had been indulged in nightly by the Hobos for years and years. From her house sprang the disreputable locality. With it gone Chief Connolly felt sure that it would be easy work to keep Hobo Hollow free from the disorderly denizens. But she was the very last to leave. It was about the notice that she had received that Chalmers Bone called to see the chief yesterday. The youngster bore a note from his mother that, coming from even old Mrs. Bone, hardened as she is, was touching. She wrote that she was sick in bed and could not move. Jim was gone to the chaingang; Queen Jessie was gone; Julius was gone; only Chalmers, eight years old, was left to her. She begged to be allowed a few days to get ready to leave. It was impossible for her to get away in the time allowed, and the house she was in was hers, she said. She said she was ready to go and was determined to lead a better life—all she asked was time. She offered to give her household belongings as security that she would go at the time named. But Chief Connolly shook his head at Master Chalmers. "Tell her she must get "." "Yes, sir," said the boy, "but she's purty low and I'm the only 'un around. I'll tell her." With this address Mr. Bone withdrew.
